

HEARINGS ON WOOL TARIFF ENLIVENED

Bennett and Longworth Engage in a Harmless Little Tilt.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The hearing on the wool schedule of the tariff before the house ways and means committee today was enlivened by an interchange of complimentary remarks between Charles F. Bennett of Boston, editor of the Cotton and Wool Reporter, and Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio. The latter insisted on a yes or no answer to his question as to whether putting raw wool on the free list would reduce the price of that commodity. Bennett insisted on answering the question in his own way and intimated that Longworth did not have the proper amount of experience on the wool question to comprehend the explanation which Bennett was trying to make.

"If I had as much experience as you have," said Longworth, "on this question, I think I would be able to answer this question, yes or no."

"And if I had as much experience leading cottons and participating in society as you have," retorted Bennett, "I think I would be able to answer any question that you might propound on social matters."

Longworth glared at Bennett, but there were no open hostilities. Bennett asserted that if the committee got the impression that the wool manufacturers were not ready and willing to co-operate with the committee in framing a satisfactory wool schedule, the committee was mistaken. He said that free raw wool and a 30 per cent duty on manufactured products would be satisfactory to all the manufacturers. Latest indications are that the committee will not put raw wool on the free list.

A brief submitted by Edward Moir in behalf of the carded wool interests declared that those interests are in favor of continuing a protected duty on raw wool, thus putting them at variance with the manufacturers of worsted goods who are opposed to the duty on raw wool, although they have declined to commit themselves openly to the committee.

The committee will tomorrow take up the sundries schedule.

WOMEN OF WEALTH TAKEN WITH STRIKERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Four women of wealth and ardent advocates of the right of their sex to the ballot who have taken an active interest in the strike of the girls in the needle industries, were gathered with seventeen strikers in the tenth street station through the left district in the lower West Twenties tonight.

The four women are Miss Maud Younger, the former society leader of San Francisco, who gave up a life of ease to work among the working girls; Mrs. Mary Remington, the writer; Mrs. Sarah Parker, editor of the Woman Voter; and Miss Margaret Hinckley, known for her work with the women's movement.

When Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Hinckley were arrested before Magistrate Hester in the night court, they explained that they had done nothing which violated any laws and they discharged them. The other two women were added to the list by the magistrate and ordered to pay a fine of $2, which they did under protest.

Another woman of prominence who entered the station house during the evening was Miss Fola LaFollette, daughter of the Wisconsin senator, who accompanied Miss Gertrude Eibner, who had been arrested during a disturbance in West Twenty-first street.

BIG SUGAR TRUST WILL NOW DISSOLVE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Rather than await the decision of the court in the sugar trust, the American Sugar Refining company will dissolve voluntarily. A step in this direction was taken today when the American Sugar Refining company sent a circular to all its shareholders stating that its directors had authorized the sale of the stock of the National Sugar Refining company of New Jersey, led by the American company.

The stock will be offered for subscription at $100 per share to all stockholders of record February 2, 1913, in proportion to their respective holdings, payment to be made not later than February 25, 1913.

No subscriptions for fractions of a share will be received. Persons having the right to subscribe to fractional amounts must either purchase additional shares in the market to make up whole shares or sell their fraction.

GIRL FRIEND OF HELEN TAFT HURT

Thrown From Horse When Animal Is Killed by a Street Car.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—While horseback riding late today with Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the president, and two other companions, Miss Martha Bowers, daughter of the late Solicitor General Lloyd Bowers, was thrown from her mount and had her right arm broken, when her horse was instantly killed by collision with a street car. Miss Taft and the others escaped injury.

The party was riding down a steep hill when Miss Bowers' horse became unmanageable and dashed away at breakneck speed. The others followed, but could not overtake her. At the foot of the hill, which was in the fashionable part of the city, the horse ran into a street car, throwing Miss Bowers violently to the pavement. A moment later Miss Taft and other members of the party, which included Miss Vincent of Minneapolis, a guest of Miss Taft at the White house, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, past assistant surgeon in the navy and naval aide to the president, reached Miss Bowers's side.

Aided by Miss Taft, Miss Bowers was carried to a nearby physician's office where she was given first aid treatment. Later it was decided to remove her to a hospital.

Miss Taft immediately telephoned for the White house automobile and rode to the hospital with Miss Bowers. The president's daughter saw to it that everything possible was done to relieve the suffering of her friend. Physicians made a careful examination of Miss Bowers's injuries and found that in addition to a double fracture of the right fore arm, she sustained lacerations of the scalp and bruises about the body. It was said at the hospital tonight that Miss Bowers was resting comfortably.

LIFE still continued to go, it is true, with something of the old sumptuousness at Mount Vernon. It was in June, 1768, that Colonel Washington ordered a new chariot, "made in the newest taste, handsome, genteel, and light to be made of the best seasoned wood, and by a celebrated workman," which was to cost him, fittings and all, 138 pounds.

For all he gave away, lest the colonist's disagreement with England should come at last to a conflict of arms, he pushed his private interests with no abatement of thoroughness or self-possession, as if there were no fear but that things would long enough stand as they were.

WASHINGTON ACQUIRES LANDS.
He had not run a surveyor's line for Lord Fairfax, or assisted to drive the French from Ohio, without seeing what fair lands lay upon the western rivers awaiting an owner; and though there was still doubt how titles were to be established in that wilderness, he took care, through the good offices of an old comrade in arms, at least to be quietly beforehand with other claimants in setting up such titles as might be where the land lay richest and most accessible.

formed in England under Lord North, and had begun its government by repealing all the taxes of 1769 except that on tea. But it was parliament's right to tax them that the colonists were fighting, not the taxes themselves, and one tax was as hateful as a hundred.

THE BOSTON AFFAIR.
The year had been marked in sinister fashion, moreover, by a broil between townsmen and troops in the streets of Boston, in which arms had been used and men slain, and in the end the affair had taken on the ugly aspect of a massacre.

The year 1771 went quietly enough for Virginians. Botetourt was dead, and that good merchant of York, William Nelson, president of the council, sat in the place of authority throughout the year. Although the whole country refused the taxed tea, the attention of the ministers, as it happened, was fixed chiefly upon Massachusetts, where trade centered at a growing port and opposition had a local habitation.

QUIET IN VIRGINIA.
In Virginia there was no place to send troops to, unless the whole country was occupied, and so long as Mr. Nelson was acting governor, Colonel Washington could go without preoccupation to the races, and gentlemen everywhere follow their own devices in the quiet colonies.

There was a tidy profit in the grant for himself; for his own share was large, and he was providently bought, besides, the shares of others who were unwilling to spend or co-operate in the matter. But there were months upon months of weary, unrequited service for his comrades, too, given with hearty diligence and without grudging.

BUYS GREAT MEADOWS.
Their portions were as well placed as his own, they were to find, when it came to the survey. He came off from the business very rich in western lands—buying the Great Meadows, among the rest, for memory's sake—but richer still in the gratitude and admiration of the men for whom he had labored.

Meanwhile events darkened ominously. A new administration had been formed in England under Lord North, and had begun its government by repealing all the taxes of 1769 except that on tea. But it was parliament's right to tax them that the colonists were fighting, not the taxes themselves, and one tax was as hateful as a hundred.
